City Pulse Survey – Let Your Voice Be Heard!

New Bedford, Massachusetts - The New Bedford Health Department has launched a new online survey called the City Pulse Survey. The brief online survey is designed to obtain feedback from New Bedford residents regarding what they believe are the most prominent health concerns in our City. Information gathered from the survey will help the Health Department shape its future programs and projects in order to better respond to the needs of City residents. Mayor Jon Mitchell said he views the survey as a great opportunity for the Health Department to receive input directly from the population it serves and encourages New Bedford residents to let their voice be heard on this issue. All answers submitted through the City Pulse Survey are anonymous. Additional information about the New Bedford Health Department can be found on the Health Department website.
