HOUSING ACCESSIBILITY GRANT PROGRAM

Things that Homeowners do in the Housing Accessibility Program

The Program will assist homeowners during the home improvement process, but homeowners are responsible for making the choices and doing the work listed below:

1. Homeowners, not the program, choose contractors to put together a proposal.
2. Homeowners, not the program, choose contractors to bid on the proposed work.
3. Homeowners, not the program, choose the contractor to perform the work on their home.
4. Homeowners, not the program, sign home improvement contracts with contractors.
5. Homeowners request and approve payments made to their contractors.
6. Homeowners inspect and approve work performed by their contractors.
7. Homeowners work with contractors to settle disagreements during the job.
8. Homeowners call their contractors, not the program, to ask them to correct problems covered by contractor warranties after the job has been completed.

Things homeowners should think about before participating in Housing Accessibility Program

1. Not all the work that homeowners want done can always be done.
2. Repairs will correct one or two accessibility problems, but will probably not solve all problems.
3. Don't expect your home to be completely "handicapped accessible" when the work is done.
4. Don't expect all floors, walls, ceilings, doors, windows and so on in older homes to be completely plumb, level and square when the work is done.
5. Houses, as well as mechanical equipment, always needs maintenance. It would be a good idea for owners to begin a savings plan to help cover the cost of future repairs and maintenance.
6. Finally, the program is not a contractor, does not recommend contractors, and cannot guarantee that homeowners will be satisfied with the work done by their contractors.
